Primarily, those speeches listed on the separate sheet have emphasized either one or two, or all of the following themes, depending upon the type of audience, the type of occasion, as well as the length of time given for a speech.

THEMES:

1. The closeness which now exists between Japan and the United States.

This favorable situation has been brought about by:

- 1) People to people contact
- 2) Mass communications
- 3) Mutually profitable economic relations

2. Japan-U.S. Trade Relations:

- 1) New facts and figures concerning Japan-U.S. trade to interpret and illustrate mutually profitable economic relations, generally known as "Partners in Progress."
- 2) What and how much Japan purchases from the United States, and vice versa.

3. Furthering better understanding of Japanese ways of thinkin and and doing things among American people so that those who are interested in doing business in and with Japan and other Asian nations may be helped in acquiring nedded background information for successful ventures. Such information includes:

- 1) Interpretation of the current economic situation in Japan
- 2) Japan's economic growth and underlying factors
- 3) Living standard and wages in Japan
- 4) Passenger and freight traffic situation in Japan
